

It is indeed a sad commentary to claim that the American public enjoys democracy, gets fair, and unbiased news with the electioneering that Sinclair Broadcasting's 62 stations intend to do shortly before the Presidential election. Sinclair uses the public airwaves free of charge. Their decision to force their stations to air an anti_Kerry documentary could hardly be considered serving the public interest.... even though they are obligated by law to do so. Herein lay the real dangers of media consolidation!

These types of actions by large companies controlling the airwaves are all the more reasons to strengthen media ownership rules. The companies requesting license renewal need to be scrutinized for fair reporting, before they get their renewal as a matter of course. So that the American public gets what they deserve in news, to hear honest, unbiased, nonpartisan news by real people in our own communities. We want to hear people discussing the truly important issues at hand. Thank you
